

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

GABRIEL URBINA-GUTIERREZ,
Petitioner,
v.
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Respondent.

Case No. 12cv01000 BTM
(98cr01700 BTM)

ORDER DENYING PETITION

On June 15, 2012, the Court issued an order to show cause why Petitioner Gabriel Urbina-Gutierrez's petition should not be denied for failure to show valid reasons for not attacking the conviction earlier (ECF No. 2). In response to the order to show cause, Petitioner, through his wife Marcela Torres de Urbina, filed a letter with the Court nunc pro tunc to August 1, 2012 (ECF No. 4).

While the Court sympathizes with the difficult life circumstances of Petitioner and his family described in the letter, such general hardship is insufficient to show cause as to the specific issue of why Petitioner did not attack the conviction earlier, all the more so because Ms. Urbina's letter did not adequately address Petitioner's reasons for not attacking the conviction earlier. While Ms. Urbina did mention a house fire that destroyed papers related to Petitioner's case (id. at 2 & 3), she offered no explanation as to why Petitioner did not seek additional copies, since the papers are in the public record for the case.

1 “A writ of coram nobis is a highly unusual remedy, available only to correct grave
 2 injustices in a narrow range of cases where no more conventional remedy is applicable, and
 3 only where the petitioner has exercised due diligence in bringing her concern promptly to the 4 attention of the courts.” Ikbal v. United States, 304 F. App’x 604, 606 (9th Cir. 2008)
 5 (quotations, alterations, and citations omitted). In general, circumstances justifying delay
 6 include: when the applicable law was recently changed and made retroactive; when new 7 evidence was discovered that the petitioner could not reasonably have located earlier; and 8 when the petitioner was improperly advised by counsel not to pursue habeas relief. See 9 United States v. Riedl, 496 F.3d 1003, 1007 (9th Cir. 2007). In contrast, the Ninth Circuit in 10 Riedl found that Riedl’s deportation, incarceration, diminished capacity, and the forfeiture of 11 some of her properties were inadequate reasons, either individually or in combination, to 12 justify her delay. Id. at 1006. See also Maghe v. United States, 710 F.2d 503 (9th Cir. 1983)
 13 (denying writ of coram nobis where petitioner failed to allege sound reasons for not 14 challenging conviction earlier). Because the Court finds that Petitioner’s situation more 15 closely resembles Riedl, the Court hereby DENIES the petition as untimely.

16 In addition, under General Order No. 514, the following personal data identifiers
 17 should not appear on pleadings filed with the Court: 1) Social Security numbers; 2) names 18 of minor children; 3) dates of birth; 4) financial account numbers; and 5) in criminal cases,
 19 the home address of any individual. Therefore, the Court ORDERS that the following pages
 20 of Ms. Urbina’s letter (ECF No. 4) be sealed: 2, 8, 11-21, 23, 25, 27, 30-31, 33-47.
